Electrical Technology and Industrial Maintenance – Mr. Clay McNutt, Director, Ashley Brown, Director and Doug Ferguson, Director

- The Electrical Technology and Industrial Maintenance programs purchased three FANUC robot trainers and two virtual training stations. These types of robots are used in various manufacturing industries within ICC's district. The capital investment by ICC will positively impact student placement and success. Offering robotic training will not only maintain ICC as a major stakeholder in current local business and industry but also may act as a catalyst in attracting new business to locate within ICC's five-county supporting district.
- Electrical Technology offered ELT 1253, Branch Circuit and Service Entrance Calculations as an online course during the 2015 spring semester, the first Electrical Technology course ever to be offered in a virtual environment. Offering the virtual course has allowed evening students the opportunity to earn credit in a course that usually is not offered in that time period and has helped students who have conflicting schedules to earn credit toward graduation.
- Electrical Technology offered ROT 1113 Fundamentals of Robotics as a dual-credit course with local high schools. Students participate in the course through online coursework and face-to-face laboratory assignments hosted at ICC's Manufacturing Solutions Center in Belden. This course is designed to broaden the high school students' knowledge of advanced manufacturing opportunities within ICC's five-county district. Students also are involved in field trips to industries in the five-county district that utilize robots.

Forestry Technology – Ms. Emily Loden-Jones, Director

- For the fifth year in a row, ICC's Forestry program has maintained its status as the largest Forestry Technology program in the state.

- The program maintained a 100 percent CPAS passing rate for another year, ranking as one of the top programs in the state.
- The program has the highest transfer rate to a senior college of all programs in the state.
- ICC's Forestry Technology program students have participated in many volunteer programs during the past year, providing 100+ service hours. National Public Lands Day was spent at the Jamie L. Whitten Center and Campground clearing brush. The program cohosted the Itawamba County Landowner Field Day at the Crane Cabin in Bull Mountain Bottom. Students also helped the Mississippi Department of Wildlife and Fisheries and Park plant food plots on the Canal Section Wildlife Management Area.
- The students have been exposed to more than 50 outdoor lab exercises in courses offered by the program with many of them focusing on the forest industry in the state. The Mississippi Forestry Commission hosted a tree ID lab, survival audit training lab and Project Learning Tree Educators workshop (certifying all students as instructors for the program).
- Mississippi State University hosted a biofuels short course in which students enrolled, and students attended the annual meeting of the Producers and Suppliers Advisory Council.
- Students have also visited many forest industries and companies in the area including Bennett and Sons Logging LLC, Tombigbee Lumber and Graham Lumber.
- The Introduction to Forestry course offered by the program included nine area professionals who presented information about careers in forestry.
